On a corner of a crossroads on the edge of Apeldoorn is a building that I would undoubtedly have passed if I hadn't been looking for it.

Because of his own modesty - that's for sure - but even more because of the environment that demands your attention here in a subtle way.

It is a crossroads that you are familiar with from cities such as Zwolle or Zaandam; spacious, traffic lights hanging over the road, a gas station close by and in two corners of the cross... shops. Chains: Decathlon, Beter Bed, Keu-kenConcurrent.

In order to give the shopkeepers in the area some extra exposure, a 20 meter high advertising column has also been placed at the intersection.

No, you will not overlook the Mediamarkt here.
